For more than forty-five years, we have been providing this service to our customers about the current wave height, wave status, tides, wind and water temperature. During the day, a store staff member visually checks the surf in person (not over any wave cam), then records his observations on the Surf Report line. As needed, the Report also doubles as a public service announcer who publishes information about surfing regulations, competitions and other local events. FAIRKatie SpagnoloForecaster Last November, 27 7:17 a.m. undefinedNote updated: See new cameras for Hilton Head and Myrtle Beach South Carolina Surf Report: Small ESE/SE mostly inflatable this morning with surfing around the high range of knee-thighs. Conditions are clear with light SW winds around 3-6kts and can be boarded for longboards in general. Low tide is around 11:40 and most spots will drain around then. Short-Term Forecast: Small 1-2' surfing is expected to linger for the afternoon. Winds will blow further west and remain light in the second half of the day, so conditions should remain favourable. High tide around 5.55pm so the tidal push from late afternoon should be a good window for small wave boards. Note: There will be no update this afternoon.
